Sporting Editor Evening World:

Dear Shr: Just a few lines to let you know I am still in the north. I fought a twenty-round draw with Jack O'Brien on the Fourth of July, and we have been matched again for Aug. 8. After that I expect to start at once for Los Angeles, where I have been matched with the winner of the Burns-Kelly go.

WIDLIE PENN.

in of the fundamental rules of fair mbling is that you cannot lose when i cannot win, and it is this rule that is the fair, it is the fastest man I ever met. but I feel confident I can beat him in twenty rounds if he will make 153 pounds for me. On the Fourth he weighed 165, while I weighed in at 150 pounds. This is a pretty good sporting rider. A little common sense in largest house they ever had at the Dawswith the matter would solve whole difficulty. I think O'Brien is the fastest man I ever met, but I feel confident I can beat him in twenty rounds if he will again some time next winter. Hoping tris reaches you in the best of health, place on earth for the busy prize I remain yours sincerely,

Fights to the Death and MEETING OF THIS PAIR PROMISES CYCLE TREAT

The cycling world is promised a big treat in the hear future. Negotiations are now being made to bring about a series of match races between Frank Kramer, the sprinting champion of America, and Iver Lawson, who has just returned to this country after defeating all of the greatest short distance with James J. He said he lived with the Taggarts at Fort Thomas, Kentucky, from 1895 to 1895. He described a visit of Lieut. Rither to the Taggart house, where he had an interview with Mrs. Taggart in the parlor at 1.80 A. M., while Capt. Taggart was away. The witness discovered Rither's presence, he said, and the latter hurried away and did not call again.

Mrs. Taggart's alleged capacity for beer was given as five glasses at one sitting, when the witness described a drinking bout between Mrs. Taggart and another woman at Fort Thomas Caron.
